

RAILS IN NEW ENGLAND WITH STEVE DELANEY

Friday, June 30 at 1:15 p.m.

Have you ever considered visiting railroad-related locations in New England but were unsure where to look? This presentation is for you! In addition to a general overview of current railroad operations in New England, we will explore the various offerings of railroad-themed locations around New England. Can operating steam engines be found in New England? Yes! We have that as part of the presentation. What about trollies? Yes, we have that too! We will also have a sampling of railroad artifacts on display from the presenter's collection.

The presenter, Stephen Delaney, is an avid railfan, award-winning photographer, and lover of all things New England. Steve has written several articles for railroad-related publications. His career included years of service as a town administrator and college instructor in public finance and management. Steve and his dad were on the last steam-powered excursion from Boston to Portland, Maine, in the 1950s. Call 617-993-2970 to register.
